Books COMING SOON from Hearts at Home

In keeping with Hearts at Home's mission to encourage, equip, and educate moms, they have two new, timely book releases that reach into a mother's life to help her in the current economic conditions of our world. Both books are available March 1, 2010. Pre-order today at www.hearts-at-home.org.

Living with Less so Your Family has More

Our culture believes that, in general, bigger is better. But when it comes to raising a family, many families find that simply isn't true. Giving our family less materially can actually provide more relationally. In order to live that out, however, the successful family needs to not listen to the cries of culture that say that bigger is better and instead march to the beat of a different drummer that says that less is actually more.

Living with Less so Your Family has More promises to strengthen your vision for your family, identify the attitudes and actions to live that vision out, and help you stand up to the adult peer pressure that surrounds you daily. Jill and Mark Savage, who have lived the less is more life for nearly 22 years, will help you redefine your priorities in order to keep family first.

Growing Grateful Kids

Even when economic times are tight, our children enjoy an abundance of material possessions. Yet amidst all this wealth, discontentment and competition seem to be on the rise. Instead of teaching children virtues such as gratefulness and patience, many parents are bending over backwards to get their children the latest and greatest item - or feeling guilty when they can't. With the currents of materialism and entitlement flowing so strong, how do we raise kids who are simply thankful? In Growing Grateful Kids, Susie Larson uses simple language, interesting anecdotes, and biblical applications, to help readers understand that although teaching perspective and gratitude to our children is critical, it is not difficult.
